Get full value from your prescription medication

Are You Getting Full Value from your Prescription Drugs?

Studies over the past decade have shown that ⅓ to ½ of all consumers who take drugs are not taking them properly. Fortunately, the consumer can avoid the suffering and the cost resulting from improper drug use by talking to his or her family doctor, dentist or pharmacist. Be sure to ask these people who are concerned about you these questions:

1. What is the drug for? The physician or dentist should discuss the diagnosis and treatment planned, the use of the drug prescribed and what the drug is expected to do for you.

2. How do I take the drug? Obviously, you need to know the basics–how many pills, how often and how long. But there are other relevant factors as well such as whether the drug should be taken on a full or empty stomach and what kind of liquid to use to take the pills with.

3. What should I do if I miss a dose? The corrective action varies with the drug. It may be correct to take a double dose or to wait and not take the missed dose at all. This information is vital to maintaining the proper level of the drug in your blood stream.

4. What are the side effects of the drug? Some side effects are minor and will eventually disappear. Other side effects may require medical attention. You should be aware of the early warning signs and how to deal with them.

5. Would any of my existing medical problems affect the use of the drug?

You should always tell your doctor about any medical problems you have, such as allergies, diabetes, hypertension, etc. You should also tell your doctor about any medications you are taking, including non-prescription drugs like aspirin or antiacids.

6. Are you aware that I am pregnant, planning to become pregnant or breast-feeding a child? This is a very important question for you to ask if you are in this category of patients. Certain medicines when taken during pregnancy or while breast-feeding a baby may cause problems in the child.

7. What activities should I avoid? Check to see whether the drug may cause side effects such as drowsiness or dizziness which would make it dangerous to drive a car or operate machinery.

8. What substances should I avoid? Other drugs, foods or substances such as alcohol may affect the way in which the drug works in your body.

9. How do I store the drug? Proper storage of medication is critical in retaining quality. Generally, drugs should be stored in a cool, dry place. Read the label for specific storage instructions or ask your family pharmacist.

10. If I have finished my therapy and I have some medicine left over, what should I do? Ask your physician if the medication should be saved for future use. If he says no, discard it by flushing it down the toilet. Never give your medication to someone else.

This information was gotten from the U. S. Office of Consumer Affairs and I thought it would be most helpful to you.
